COULD THEY FORGET?

...correspondent wants to know why, ...y opinion California voted to give ...women the ballot.

There are doubtless various reasons, ...t this is one:

California owes women much, and ...e was not ungallant enough, when ...minded of her obligation, to forget it. The story of the plainsman and the plainswoman is a story of glory and tragedy in which the man got most ...t the glory and the woman most of the tragedy.

When the news of gold came to the forty niner' he hitched up his prairie schooner and started on the Santa Fe trail. Often, under the canvas cover, on the seat by his side was a woman—sometimes with a babe in her arms.

And she?

Leaving every friend on earth behind and sharing alike with her man—if she lived—she heard in the after years the story of his heroism. It was the man who made the desert blossom as the rose—always the men.

If she lived!

Go by the way of the trail of the gold seekers and know that trail is strewn with the graves of women. There are no monuments. And there are countless tiny graves, long unmarked, where they buried their babes.

And then—

Those who survived the ordeal toiled side by side with their argonauts in gulch and field and cabin. It is a typical fact that the wives of the bonanza mine owners in the days of hardship washed the clothes of the miners in order to grubstake their husbands.

And there were more babies.

The pioneer women suffered and toiled and died. Nine out of every ten of the early California miners, so it is stated, married two to three wives, some four or five. It was hard on women in those days.

Could California forget?

And so when a newer generation of these women went before the new generation of men and told how their mothers had come to El Dorado in the movers' wagons and asked that women be recognized at the polls it was not in the heart of man to refuse.

Such an appeal could not go unanswered.

California honored herself in her fine appreciation of the women in whose laps her civilization was carried across the plains.

Tungsten and Its Uses.

The mineral tungsten (the name meaning heavy stone) has been known for many years, but only comparatively recently has it become of economic importance. Its most important use, according to the United States geological survey, and the one which makes tungsten mining on an extensive scale possible is an alloy for tool steel. Lathes using tools made from tungsten steel may be speeded up until the chips leaving the tool are so hot that they turn blue, an operation which would ruin the temper of high carbon steel. It is stated that about five times as much can be done with lathes built for such speed and work as can be done by the same lathes with carbon steel tools. From 10 to 20 per cent of tungsten is ordinarily used in lathe tools. The melting point of tungsten is exceedingly high—5,576 degrees F. Tungsten also has an important use in making incandescent electric lamps, crucibles for electric furnaces and various other articles.

Depends.

"Do you prefer the expression 'among' or 'amid'?"

"It depends on circumstances. If you are referring to a pretty girl at Annapolis in June week it would be awkward to say 'amid middies.'"—Baltimore American.

LIVELY DOINGS ENTERTAIN EDGELY

Bristol's Booming Suburb Puts in a Week of Gaiety.

The Edgely Euchre Club held its regular weekly meeting last week at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus J. Frazier, Grieb avenue, Riverview. A good time was had by all present and a fine supper was served at a late hour. The prizes were won by Mrs. William M. Remine and William L. Johnson.

A number of our residents went to Wheat Sheaf on Sunday evening to witness the fire which destroyed the hotel at that place shortly after six o'clock. The property was owned by John Leonard and was partially covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A new type of electric heater has been installed in one of the cars on the Morrisville-Trenton division of the trolley road and is a vast improvement over the "refrigerators" formerly in use. All cars will be equipped with the new apparatus as soon as possible.

SHOOT FOR A PORKER.

A shooting match at clay pigeons was held at the home of "Mayor" McLaughlin at Riverview on Saturday afternoon and proved a success in every way. The prize was a young pig which had been roasted by Mrs. McLaughlin and was won by William Evans, of Philadelphia, who very graciously invited all present to go in to the house and partake of the same. Mrs. McLaughlin had prepared a fine supper for the crowd of hungry shooters and to say that full justice was done would be putting it mildly. William Allen, of Bristol, acted as "butcher" and the manner in which he carved showed that he was no novice at the game. The table and dining room were prettily decorated and the porker, standing on all fours with a large red apple in his mouth, made a pretty picture. The menu was as follows:

Roast Pig a la Mayor
Apple Sauce
Hot Biscuits — Pepper Hash
Mashed Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes — Pickled Onions
Cake
Coffee — Cigars
Riverview Mineral Water.

After the refreshments a number of solos were rendered by the Mayor's secretary, Joseph Abbott, but on account of a bad cold he was unable to warble in his usual manner. The scores of the shoot were as follows:

Another shoot will be held at the same place on Saturday, February 17. See the "Mayor" for an invitation.

327 EGGS FROM 35 CHICKENS.

William M. Remine, of Harshaw's Curve, is somewhat proud of the record of his flock of Rhode Island Red chickens for the month of January. Out of a flock of 12 old hens and 23 pullets Mr. Remine gathered 327 eggs last month and thinks that it is a pretty good record when the severe weather is taken into consideration. Eggs are now retailing for 4 1-2 and 5 cents each and Mr. Remine is naturally of the opinion that it pays to keep a few hens. If you can beat this let us have your figures and we will be glad to publish them—and Mr. Remine says he will take a back seat and keep quiet.

Edmund Hellings, of Edgely, was a Bristol visitor for several days last week.

Plans have been drawn for a school house and church at this place and work will be started in the early spring.

"Mayor" Harry McLaughlin has a new dog for the protection of his hennery. It is said to be a very savage animal.

A rural free delivery route has been established to take in the river road and all of our residents now get their mail delivered daily.

The concrete beds at the new building operations at Headley Manor have been frozen so hard that work has been suspended for a short time.

Miss Estill, of Millville, N. J., who has been spending several weeks at Riverview with her sister, Mrs. Oliver Frazier, has returned home.

Mrs. Christopher Buchler, of Bristol, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simpson, at the Floral Exchange, several days last week.

Dr. Klenk, our new physician, has been very busy the past few weeks. Since the death of Dr. Biehn he has the field practically to himself and has been kept on the jump.

There is much comment over the delay in putting the finishing touches on the new bridge over the Hollow creek. No doubt the severe weather has been the cause of the suspension of work thereon.

Jesse Betz, of Bristol, is making preparations to move into his new home at Riverview in the near future. We would like to know when Mr. Betz is going to break into double harness so we can give him the proper kind of a send-off.

Prof. Thompson's new house on the river bank at Riverview is nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. Mr. Thompson will have a number of deaf and dumb boys from his school as companions and live there practically the entire year.

Little Elwood Britton, who lives with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLaughlin, at Riverview, narrowly escaped serious injury when he ran into the abutment stone wall along the river ... coasting. His sled was ... small pieces and ... in his head ... when he w... probably ...

Joseph Abbott was a Philadelphia visitor over Sunday.

Mrs. Alpheus Frazier spent several days in Trenton last week.

William Evans, of Philadelphia, was the week-end guest of friends at Riverview.

Ernest Cowell, of Philadelphia, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. William L. Johnson.

A party and dance was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holland, Riverview, last Saturday night. A large number of people from this place, Tullytown and Bristol were present and a good time was had by all. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Penn Valley Pencil Notes.

George Kemble spent Monday in Princeton, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Wright spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Langhan Clark of near Morrisville.

Charles Patterson, Sr., who was injured by a falling timber last week, is reported to be slowly improving.

Mr and Mrs. William Balderson, of near here, are spending sometime in Florida on account of poor health.

Mrs. Allen Hibbs and son, Ernest, spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fabian, Philadelphia.

Merrill Sickles, of Trenton, spent the week-end at the home of his grandparents Mr. and Mrs A. R. Sickles.

The funeral of Peter Roppell was held from his home on Saturday, the Rev. Francis Smith, of Fallsington, officiating.

Howard Satterthwaite and Clifford Watson have discontinued their studies at the Rider-Moore & Stewart business college of Trenton.

Cornwells and Vicinity.

George States spent Sunday in Paterson, N. J.

Mrs. Hogeland spent Sunday in Morrisville, N. J.

Allen Smith went on a business trip to Doylestown on Saturday.

Mrs. Wilmer States, of Bridesburg, spent Thursday visiting Mrs. William States.

Jacob Whitehead, of Torresdale, spent Thursday with his sister, Mrs. George States.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. Gilbert, also three of the children, with diphtheria.

Prayer meeting of the Cornwells M. E. church will be held at the home of Edward Covert, on Becker's avenue.

William Hogeland went on a flying trip to Morrisville, Saturday, to see his brother, who has been ill for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wildman returned home Monday, after spending a few days with the latter's parents, at Absecon, N. J.

A sleighing party from Cornwells enjoyed a pleasant ride to Bristol, and also the show at the Riverside Theatre on Tuesday evening. They included: Mrs Anna Knight, Mrs Harry Lippincott, Mrs John Knight, Mrs Paul Jones, Misses Ella Simons, Elsie Smith, Florence Smith, Victoria Egrette and Ivins Knight.

An evening company was given by Mr. Boal on Saturday evening. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Boal, Mr and Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. William States, Mr. and Mrs. Horace States, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenks, Misses Harriet Wood, Romelia Wood and Warren Allen. The evening was enjoyed by dancing, music being furnished by friends of Mr. Boal, comprising four string instruments.

Emilie News.

Wedding bells will soon be ringing in our little village.

Miss Lidie Wilson is spending the week in Philadelphia.

LETTER FROM DOYLESTOWN

Doylestown, February 7.

Politics is a negligible quantity here in consequence of the severe winter weather which prevents the Congressional aspirants from their contemplated house to house canvass of Bucks county and part of Montgomery. The weather does not prevent the candidates from sending out large quantities of campaign literature of the latest approved brand and already extra mail pouches are being used of necessity and Postmaster Keeler is figuring on at least a two hundred dollar increase in his salary. Both candidates here have an extra force of stenographers, typewriters and general assistants, who are being worked to their utmost capacity, day and night. By the way is it fair that Postmaster Keeler should reap all the benefits of this battle royal? Where does Postmaster Pete come in? He is certainly entitled to the lion's share of the increase by all the rules of the game.

Up to this time there are no candidates announced publicly who wish to attend the National Republican Convention from the Eighth Congressional District although it is rumored among the faithful that no less a man than Boss Grundy is desirous of representing the Bucks county end of the delegation. Of course if he wants it he will pretty surely get it as he will probably have no opposition, at least none among the organization adherent. That makes Bucks county sure for Taft on the first ballot anyhow and probably as long as he is in the fight unless Penrose changes his mind.

Quite a number of people, from all parts of the county, have commented on the disreputable, dirty, unpainted court house that Bucks county is supposed to be proud of, and more than one suggestion has been made that the building be placed in thorough repair before June 9 next, the date of the County Seat Centennial and Old Home Week. The absolute need of repairs and general overhauling is admitted by everybody. Of course to do this will cost money and probably a bridge or two of no material use to anybody but the contractors will have to lay over a year, but is it not better to save our present building from decay and ruin? The present Board of County Commissioners will either have to act and that speedily or a writ of Mandamus may be asked for and their dereliction of duty made plain to every tax payer in the county. Of course there is "nothing in it" for a certain element, who have been feeding on the county for years, but there is a whole lot of real economy in it for the men who have to pay the taxes, for in another year it will cost double what it will at this time.

At a session of court last Monday Judge Ryan approved the sheriffs appointments for jailer and assistant jailer. William Fletcher retains his position as jailer and Harry Dinkerlacher has been appointed assistant.

Two foreigners, one from France, the other from Germany, were naturalized and a Juvenile court case disposed of. Augustus Snyder resigned as constable of Solebury township, Thomas Keenan was appointed in his place.

There will be court every Monday this month. It will take quite some time for Judge Ryan to bring the business of the courts up to date but as he is going about it very systematically, it is probable that in a month or two it will be caught up.

To maintain the physical culture classes of the public schools, which are paid for by private contributions, a bakery was held this week at which a sufficient sum was raised to pay off a small indebtedness and run the class for another month. The school board should pay for the whole thing, but as matters now stand they contribute nothing but a basement room to the class.

Quite a number of birds have frozen here during the cold weather, meadow larks, English starlings, robins and several others have been found. So far, however, the English sparrow survives all cold weather and everything else for that matter and continues to make a nuisance of himself. It is to be hoped the starling will drive them away.

The death of ex-Sheriff Alonzo Nicholas by asphyxiation in an Atlantic City hotel was quite a shock to his many friends in the county seat. His room was heated by a gas radiator, the sheriff turned the gas off at the radiator, but not at the wall and as events developed it leaked very badly at that point and was the cause of his death. He is survived by a wife and four children, Carrie, Sadie, Isaac and Herbert.

Hugh B. Eastburn, Esq., one of the delegates representing the school directors of Bucks county who attended the State meeting of Directors at Harrisburg, returned home Friday evening. He reports the session a profitable and enjoyable one. His associates were: William W. Watson, of Newtown; Lewis R. Bond., of Morrisville, and Dr. Arthur E. Fretz, of Sellersville.

Among the many features of the Old Home Week at the county seat, none will be more interesting than the re-unions of the many organizations of the town and more especially that of the old Doylestown Seminary, whose former students are located all over the county. Many have shown a great interest in it and a meeting will be called for organization next week. Among its former pupils are two of the prominent men of Bristol, John C. Stuckert, Esq., and Howard I. James, Esq. The re-union will be held at Oaklands and many of the former teachers will be present. The following call has been issued and has met with a hearty response although there are many more the committee would like to hear from:

"I have been requested by a number of the former students at the "Old Doylestown English and Classical Seminary" to see if an arrangement can be made by which a re-union of all the old students could be held at the seminary on some day during County Seat Centennial and Old Home Week.

"I therefore take this means of requesting all former students who may read this letter to communicate with me, giving their ideas and opinions on its feasibility and probable success.

"As there will be a great deal of difficulty attached getting into communication with many of the former students, and as it will be necessary to have a committee to take charge of this work, an early reply is requested.

Kindly send the name and address of all former pupils known to you.

JOHN D JAMES,
Doylestown, Pa."

It looks now as though the county seat had lost the Fox Gun Factory. J. N. Jacobs, the cashier of the Doylestown National Bank, who was investigating for the county seat investors, now appears at the head of a committee who are endeavoring to induce the Fox people to locate at Lansdale. As Mr. Jacobs resides at Lansdale he is more interested in Lansdale than he is in Doylestown, hence the well founded fear that again we are not in it. Now is the opportunity for one or both of the Trust companies here to show their spunk and get busy. It is not to late to bring the factory here but the money power of the town must take charge of the bonds and see that everything is alright. The proposition is a sure one but still our ultra conservative money lenders hold back when they are doing so to their own injury. Whatever they do, they must do quickly but they probably will do nothing.

Oxford Valley.

Henry Sherry is busy weaving carpets and rugs.

Miss Mildred Spencer is visiting in Mt. Holly, N. J.

C. E. leader for next Sunday evening will be Miss Mary Nowell.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fabian were visiting at J. L. Tomlinson's on Sunday.

There will be preaching in the chapel next Sunday afternoon, February 11, at three o'clock by Rev. William Michaels, of Langhorne. Everybody welcome.

On Saturday evening, February 10, there will be an entertainment held in the chapel for the benefit of the C. E. society. The chief attraction will be a drama entitled "The Scheme That Failed," presented by the Fallsington L. T. L. There will also be a cornet solo by Fallsington talent. This will be augmented by a drill and a play, and special music by Oxford Valley young people. Admission, 20 cents. Doors open at 7.30.

Mrs. John L. Tomlinson gave a surprise party at her home on last Saturday evening for Miss Lillian McDowell, who was sixteen years old on Sunday. A very lively and enjoyable evening was spent with refreshments at a late hour. Miss McDowell was the recipient of many dainty gifts. Those present were: Misses Lillian McDowell, Lena South, Mamie Niblick, Mabel Wharton, Edna Wharton, Martha Stradling, Lizzie Longshore and Mabel Pidcock; Messrs. Walter Wilcox, Raymond Wilcox, Edward Longshore, Henry McGee, William McNabb, Raymond Miller, John McNabb, Howard Bresh; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sutton, and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Tomlinson.

NEWTOWN NOTES

Lester R. Martindell is expecting to take a trip to Florida.

Peter Higgins had a sale of Kansas horses here on Tuesday.

The New Century Club met Wednesday afternoon of this week.

Mr. and Mrs Alexander T. Paxson are in Richmond, Virginia, for a ten days' stay.

Clarence Starr, of Shamokin, Pa., was a week-end visitor with his brother-in-law, Harold L. Watson.

The Newtown Young People's Club is holding a valentine party this Friday evening at the home of Miss Virena Smith.

Thursday afternoon the W. C. T. U. conducted a meeting in memory of Frances E. Willard, at the home of Mrs Elizabeth Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Johnson announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to William J. McLaughlin, of Camden, N. J.

William R. Slack, of Churchville, will open a store at Centre avenue and Court street and conduct a painting and paper hanging business.

Sleighing and coasting parties have been the chief form of amusement for the young people here about for the past two weeks. Coasting has seldom if ever been so good everywhere for such a continuous period as it has been the past week.

The Farmers' Institute held in Newtown hall Monday and Tuesday drew many rural visitors to our town. All of the sessions were largely attended and most of the subjects discussed were of interest to all, whether they were farmers or not.

Susan Buckman, an aged resident died at the Friends Boarding Home early Tuesday morning. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon with interment at Friends grave yard. The deceased is survived by a sister, Letitia, with whom she lived.

Now that the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Traction Company lines have come under the control of the Bucks County Electric Railway Company, it is expected that cars on the former line will soon be running in better shape. It is understood that Newtown is to be the main headquarters for the entire system, with the exception of the Princeton road, and all cars will start out each day from the big car barn on Lincoln avenue, so the prospects are that there will be many new comers into Newtown, as the trolley conductors and motormen who now reside in Trenton will be obliged to live here. The supply of houses for rent is going to run short from present indications.

The Crown of Motherhood.

When God stooped to earth and placed the crown of motherhood on the brow of woman, he enthroned in the heart a purer, truer, holier love than man can ever possess. This thought should be an incentive, and a stimulating reflection to all care-worn mothers, that while they carry the real burdens of life, they possess the real gem that rules the world—love. How many careless, lighthearted, indifferent creatures have been transformed by the word "motherhood" into beings of love. Then, if God saw fit to confer the honor on woman of "keeping his jewels," did he intend her to be encumbered with the "yoke of sin," and yet bring them up for His glory? Some of his messages, heavily freighted with love, seem intended for mothers. Surely "Come unto me all ye that are heavy laden and I will give you rest," is balm to the weary heart. No music so sweet when we have heard its meaning.

Our Great Combination Offer.

Wide-awake people who are looking for bargains should sit right down and send to this office an order for the Bucks County Gazette one year and the Farm Journal five years BOTH for $1.00 which is no more than the price of our paper alone. This special offer is good only until March 31, 1912. Send the order and money in now, while you have it in your mind.

"I told you you couldn't keep a secret, Ethel." "Well, I can." "You've told everybody what I confided to you the other day." "I know that; but I've got the secret just the same. They haven't taken it away from me."

Jones: "Why did you break your engagement with that school teacher?" Brown: "If I failed to show up at her house every evening she expected me to bring a written excuse signed by my mother."

HOW OLD PEOPLE

May Prolong Their Lives

At an advanced age waste is more rapid than repair. The organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth. The circulation is poor, the blood thin and watery, the appetite poor and digestion weak.

We want to say to every aged person in this vicinity that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) will prolong life. It creates an appetite, aids digestion and makes good blood. In this natural manner Vinol retards waste and replaces weakness with strength, giving new life to the worn system.

If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

LANGHORNE LOCALS

Mrs. William H. Melon has been on the sick list.

Miss Mary White, of Trenton, has been visiting relatives.

Harry L. Ridge has returned to business after a short illness.

Headley White has recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reifsnyder, of Philadelphia, were Sunday visitors.

Mrs. James Cassidy, of South Orange, has been visiting Mrs. Alice Hart.

Miss Powell, of Lansdowne, has been visiting Miss Elizabeth J. Eshérick.

Miss Lela Gatchel, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor at Mrs. Walter Gatchel's.

Mrs. Margaret Linton Howerton, of Washington, D. C., has been visiting Mrs Mary E. Linton.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Wednesday afternoon, February 14th, at the home of Mrs. George Hobbs.

The "Standard Bearers" of the M. E. church spent a pleasant evening at Mrs. William H. Melon's on Friday.

William S. Fassett and son, Lyman Fassett, have returned from visiting relatives at Saratoga Springs, New York.

Mrs Abigail F. Marshall and Miss Ethel Marshall, who are spending the winter in Philadelphia were at home on Friday.

Mrs. Charles Sargeant was given a birthday postal surprise the 29th of January, receiving about 125 cards, which were greatly appreciated.

The church calendar for the M. E. church this week reads: Tuesday evening, meeting board of stewards at parsonage, Wednesday, 2 30 Ladies' Aid; Wednesday after prayer service, meeting of the board of trustees.

Rome, the city of the Caesars, was the subject of a very interesting and able lecture by the Rev. Dr. Stocking at the St. James rectory, on Saturday evening, February 3rd. The lecture was illustrated which also added to its interest.

Mr. and Mrs Dwight Wilbur announce the marriage of their sister, Theresa May Wilbur, to Frederick Mackey Paist, on Wednesday, the thirty-first day of January, at Los Angeles, California. Mr. and Mrs Frederick Mackey Paist will be at home after the first day of April, Langhorne.

If you want to hear a good entertainment of local talent keep in mind the minstrel show on Friday evening, the 11th, at the hall in charge of the Brotherhood of the M. E. church. Good voices, jokes, and a play will make an enjoyable evening. Reserved seats at Pryor's drug store, 35 cents, admission 25 cents, the latter ticket for sale by members of the brotherhood.

From the land of fruit and flowers, word reaches us that our Langhorne party, Mrs Sara E. Allen, Miss Esther B. Justice, Miss Rachel A. Child, Miss Anna B. Appleton have been attending the "Orange County Fair" which is held in Orlando, Florida, and the Decorated-Automobile Parade, both being annual events of great interest to sojourners in that balmy zone where the favored are enjoying the glorious sunshine of the south-land, miles removed from our sleet and ice.

There was a large attendance at the Ladies' Auxiliary on Friday afternoon, the meeting being held at the home of Mrs Holmes S. Green. The business meeting was followed by a social hour, refreshments being served. The annual election of officers is as follows: President, Mrs. Howard Mather, vice president, Miss Ethel White, secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Jeanette F. Leedom; chairman of Entertainment committee, Miss Frances Fassett; Sewing committee, Mrs. Sara P. Gillingham; Membership and Visiting committee, Miss Flora Kenderdine. The next meeting will be held February 16th at Miss Flora Kenderdine's.

Penn's Manor Locals.

Miss Jane Sterling spent Wednesday last with friends in Philadelphia.

John R. Greenlee and Charles M. Robinson have each purchased a new house.

It is rumored that wedding bells will ring in the Manor in the near future.

Miss Hilda Page was a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chapman, of Morrisville.

The C. E. society will give a Valentine social in the near future, the date not yet being agreed upon.

Mrs. Harry Chapman, of Morrisville, spent a few days last week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baker.

Mrs. John Grant and Mrs. George Innes, of Trenton, spent Thursday of last week at the home of Mrs. C. J. Seidensticker and family.

On Thursday last, John Neely visited Noah Sequoyah, who is still in the McKinley Hospital, Trenton, and reports him to be doing nicely.

At the oyster supper held in the chapel last Wednesday evening, the sum of $48.75 was cleared of all expenses. We greatly appreciate the kind patronage of our friends, who, as usual, came from far and near to assist in making it a great success.

There were no services in the chapel last Sunday evening owing to some of the roads being blocked with snow. Our pastor, Rev. John Girton, finding he could not continue on his way to church, stopped at John Neely's, and while ungearing his horse the animal became frightened, causing Mr. Girton to slip and sprain his ankle. We trust it will not prove serious.

The Silver Dollar.

The silver dollar has undergone a great many changes since it was put in circulation in 1794. On the face of the first dollar there was stamped the head of a young woman turned to the right and with hair flowing, as if she was in a gale of wind. But in 1796 congress came to her relief and ordered her hair to be tied up with a bit of ribbon. The fifteen stars which appeared on the first dollar were after this reduced to the original thirteen in recognition of the number of states.

In 1836 the design was again changed, and the dollar bore the figure of a woman dressed in a flowing garment. The designer forgot, however, to put in the thirteen stars, and the coin was soon called in, the new design having the woman surrounded by stars. Her air was defiant and stiff looking, and in 1838 dollars were issued which were more artistic in treatment. The first dollars bearing the motto, "In God We Trust," were coined in April, 1864, and in 1873 the era of the trade dollar began, lasting just five years.

The Liberty dollar made its appearance in 1878. Miss Anna W. Williams, a public school teacher of Philadelphia, sat for the portrait.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Lower Bensalem.

A horse belonging to John Vandegrift, Bridgewater grocer, became paralyzed and had to be killed.

Friends of Miss Jennie Crier will be pleased to learn she continues to improve; she is still in the Philadelphia hospital.

A cake and candy sale will be given by the choir of Christ church, Eddington, in the basement of the church, on Saturday afternoon and evening, February 17th, from 5 to 9 o'clock.

The regular monthly meeting of the missionary society of the Eddington Presbyterian church will be held this Friday afternoon, at Mrs. Frank Simons, Kings avenue, Cornwells, at 3 o'clock.

That was a wise hen that laid a double shelled egg to protect it from the cold. Of course, it may have been a fable but then, it is true, too true what the song says:

"The world's growing older each day
The world's growing colder they say.
The world's not the place
For a dreamer of dreams."

The Boy Scout Club of Christ church, Eddington, has been re-organized and now meets regularly every Friday night. Plans are under consideration for the revival of the men's club. The basement of the church has been considerably improved in the last year and now furnishes a very comfortable meeting place for parish organizations.

Fallsington Fancies.

John Swope recently purchased a new horse.

Mr. Fish was a recent visitor at the State Home for Boys, Jamesburg.

The Y. P. C. A. gave a dance on Saturday evening in Library hall.

One of the horses belonging to Charles M. Headley died last week.

William Atkinson, of Newtown, was recently a visitor at Edward Crossdale's.

The Friends' Literary Society met at the home of Lewis Satterthwaite on Saturday evening.

The L. T. L. will hold their annual banquet at Library hall on Saturday evening, February 17th.

Miss Sara Rowe and Mr. Smith, of near Yardley, were guests of Mrs. Martha Rowe on Thursday afternoon.

Albert S. Hibbs has gone to the Samaritan Hospital, Philadelphia, where he expects to have an operation.

Edward Swope has moved from Mrs. Amy Tomlinson's house to that of Warren Kelly, in the upper part of the village.

Mrs. Charles Comfort and Miss Paulina Leigh attended the general meeting of the Primitive Friends at Bristol last week.

Dr. Richards had a runaway last week, when his horse became frightened at the falling ice, and things were generally smashed up, but the doctor escaped with a few bruises.

The L. T. L. will repeat the drama given in Library hall some time ago in the chapel at Oxford Valley, on February 10. The proceeds are for the C. E. of that place and our local L. T. L.

Shooting With a Revolver.

Very few people, even accomplished shots, know how a revolver ought to be handled.

Troops are taught in aiming never to look at the weapon at all, but to keep their eyes on the object to be struck. In quick firing, and especially in shooting from horseback, much better results are obtainable in this way.

A man throwing a stone does not look at his hand; neither does a billiard player sight along his cue. The same rules apply to the use of short weapons. Men have been trained to shoot excellently at a mark when they could not see their pistol sights at all.

Pieces of pasteboard were fastened just in front of the cylinders, which effectually prevented the men from using their foresights and greatly increased the rapidity of their fire.

Nearly any one can sight a pistol correctly, the inaccuracy of the aim being due to the trembling of the hands before the trigger is pressed. By hiding the sight the temptation to hold too long is removed and the first aim, generally the most accurate, is preserved.—Pearson's.

Oldest City of the New World.

Much of romance attaches to South America, growing out of the history of its ancient inhabitants and the story of the invasion of white men. In both respects Peru is richer than any other part of the continent. It was here that the Inca dynasty, founded by Manco Capac, son of the sun, had its seat, and here was the stage upon which moved the theatrical figure of Pizarro, greatest of the conquistadores. Not even Montezuma's capital can boast the antiquity of Cuzco. It is the oldest city in the new world and was ancient when the Spaniards looted its temples. A narrow strip of sandy coast stretches for 1,000 miles between Ecuador and Chile. At the back of it rises abruptly the purple wall of the Andes, capped by a cheval de frise of snowy peaks which seem to pierce the very skies. But at the greatest heights are massive ruins, which indicate that once in the long forgotten past cities existed in this inhospitable region, where storms of wind, rain and hail are of constant occurrence.

HULMEVILLE NOTES

Miss Lettie Vrabec, of Bristol, visited friends here last week.

Horace Davis, of Philadelphia, spent Saturday with relatives and friends here.

Mrs. Margaret Barkley, of Trenton, is spending some time visiting relatives in town.

The preacher for next Sunday morning at the M. E. church will be William Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ivins, of Rocksville, spent Sunday with John G. Laros and family.

Mrs Ella Slack, of Yardley, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Alexander Crosson.

The business meeting of the trustees of the M. E. church met at the home of S. J. Illick on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Thierolf of Philadelphia, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs W. R. Thierolf, of South Langhorne.

Mr and Mrs. Kirk MacCorkle and daughter, of Philadelphia, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Laura Kirk.

Mrs. George Geslin and daughter, Miss Elsie, of Philadelphia, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thierolf.

The Epworth League meeting of the M. E. church will be led by Mrs W. R. Thierolf next Sunday evening. The topic will be "The Strong Shall Not Take Advantage of the Weak."

The Mothers' Guild of the Episcopal church gave a very successful A, B, C supper on Saturday evening in Hibbs' hall. About one hundred and fifty dollars was the amount cleared.

Jeremiah Ball Spicer died at his late residence on Main street on Friday evening, after a prolonged illness, aged 64 years. He had been employed by the Bucks County Electric Railway Company for a number of years in their transformer at Hulmeville. Funeral took place on Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment was made at Beechwood cemetery.

Fred Reddish, employed as a farm hand by Arthur Smith, Bensalem township, was found hanging by a rope, which he had thrown over a beam in the hay mow on Friday afternoon. About one hour had elapsed from the time he was last seen until he was found, life was extinct. Funeral Director Charles Haefner took charge of the body, pending the arrival of relatives.

The entertainment given by Wild Rose Rebekah Lodge, No. 254, I. O. O. F., in Hibbs' hall, Hulmeville, on Saturday evening last was a success. The weather was fine, a good audience filled the hall and a neat sum was realized by the lodge. On the Thursday evening following, the home of Mr and Mrs Howard Vansant was the scene of a lively good time when they entertained, in their cordial manner, all who participated in the Saturday evening entertainment, together with a few outside guests. The evening was most pleasantly spent, all enjoying games, music, lantern slides and a fine time generally. Delicious refreshments were served and at a late hour all departed thanking their host and hostess for the evening's pleasure. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Vansant, Miss Ella Vansant, Praul Vansant, Mr. and Mrs Praul, Mr. and Mrs. Pidcock, Mr and Mrs. Jesse Everitt, Misss May Stradling, Rev. and Mrs. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs Jesse Webster, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thierolf, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Smith, Miss Frances Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Miss Margaret Smith, Ferdinand Baehofer, Robert Brien, Mr. Schoenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Henry and Hugh Webster.

EASILY DECIDED

This Question Should be Answered Easily by Bristol People.

Which is wiser—to have confidence in the opinions of your fellow-citizens, of the people you know, or depend on statements made by utter strangers residing in far-away places? Read the following:

William A. Michener, 528 Swain street, Bristol Pa., says, "It affords me great pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave two years ago, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Nothing has happened during the time that has sincee passed to alter my high opinion of this preparation. My two children were afflicted with a most annoying kidney weakness and steadily grew worse. There was no control over the kidney secretions and this proved that the kidneys were weak. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I decided to try them and procured a box at Erthal's Pharmacy. Their use brought relief in a remarkably short time and before long my children were restored to good health. I am grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for their good work in these two cases."

A REPLY.

In retort to an editorial paragraph printed in last week's Gazette, our local contemporary, in sacred allegiance to a tariff schedule which the Republican President of the United States has characterized as "indefensible," says.

It certainly seems inconsistent for a newspaper that has been waging war upon the protective tariff that has been the main support of Bristol's industrial classes to gravely state in its editorial columns that 'prosperity for workingmen is prosperity for all Anything that affects the wage earner injuriously is sure to be felt by others" We wonder if the editor of that paper really believes that a radical reduction of the tariff on wool would not "injuriously affect" the wage earner.

The editor of the Gazette sincerely and firmly believes that the abolition of the tariff on raw wool, and a fair and equitable reduction on the manufactured products thereof, would be to the distinct advantage of the American wage-earner

The old worn out, shoddy argument of the American Protective Tariff League, and all that it represents in regard to 'protection to the workingman," is a bald piece of hypocrisy, and we only have to turn to Lawrence Mass, and Bethlehem, Pa, to find the proof

Schedule K is touted as a piece of legislation to protect the American workingman from the competition of the pauper labor of Europe when in reality it does nothing of the kind

William Wood, who practically wrote the wool schedule is president of the American Woolen Company, which operates thirty gigantic textile mills in New England In the city of Lawrence, Mass, the Wood mills are the largest worsted plants in the world At this very hour that city confronts, as the Philadelphia Ledger says, the most serious situation that has arisen in New England since the historic draft riots of the Civil war Within the past two weeks a hitherto peaceful community has assumed the appearance of an armed camp On every side uniformed militiamen patrol the streets with loaded rifles and sinister bayonets Here and there are to be seen cavalrymen, sabres at their sides, and at their belts holsters containing heavy army revolvers"

It is not necessary for us to explain in detail to the editor of our local contemporary why this situation exists It is known of all men who read the daily newspapers They know that a strike is on They know that 'not a single loom is turning in the monster brick hives of industry which line the banks of the Merrimac river"

Thirty thousand men, women and children, all pauper laborers of Europe, have ceased work in the "protected' woolen mills in rebellion against the starvation wages paid by the American Woolen Company

The Ledger's correspondent at Lawrence declares that the wages of operators average from $6 to $9 per week, and that most of the children in the mills receive three dollars a week or less And these operators have struck because a reduction on these wages was made because the State of Massachusetts, by its Legislature, in the effort to alleviate the conditions in the textile mills, passed a law reducing the hours of labor per week from fifty-six to fifty-four hours per week

These strikers are practically all foreigners, who have driven the American workmen out of the textile mills in the Lawrence district And still there are found here and there men who will boldly proclaim that the high tariff is for the benefit of the American workingmen– to protect them from foreign labor competition.

Read this taken from the Lawrence, Mass., Eagle, which has been published in that city for thirty years

Driven from pillar to post for explanations to justify the Payne-Aldrich tariff tax, standpat Protectionists long ago abandoned the theory that the foreigner pays the tariff and now stand on the assurance to the people that a prohibitive tariff is for the "protection" of "American' workingmen. When Schedule K which places a heavy tax on every article of woolen clothing worn by every man, woman and child in the nation, was up for discussion, Aldrich, Lodge Smoot and other special privilege servants of the Senate and House declared their principal motive to 'protect' the "American" workingman in the woolen industry. Schedule K became a law, the prices of all kinds of clothing made wholly or in part of wool have advanced, and the combination of manufacturers who contributed heavily to Republican campaign funds to have Schedule K framed and passed have made millions. But how have the 'American" workingmen been 'protected?" The strike of textile workers in this city, one of many similar illustrations which could be given, throws some light on the subject It puts the lie to the statement that Schedule K protects the "American" workingman, because the information shows there are scarcely any "American' workers left in the woolen manufacturing industry to protect. The mill owners have "protected" the "American" workingmen by driving them from their employment with low wages and unbearable working conditions, and by filling their places with laborers from southern Europe. Fifty-two different nationalities are represented by the strikers at Lawrence and 45 languages are spoken here. Bayonets and decreased wages for the men, women and children workers instead of the workingman's paradise pictured by Aldrich, Lodge and Smoot, is the definition of Schedule K that the mill workers in Lawrence are learning by actual experience.

The progress of cities is measured by the public spirit of their inhabitants. Men whose only interest is in the success of their individual business may make money for themselves, but they cannot build successful cities any more than a pile of stones can furnish sustenance for growing plants.

Home and School Association's Solicitation.

The Home and School Association of Bristol township earnestly solicits clean books of all kinds in good condition and also games. The books will be placed in the Green Lane school for the use of all. The library established there will be open on Friday evenings from 7.30 to 9 o'clock. Books to be sent to Mrs. Burnet Landreth, Jr., 212 Radcliffe Street, Bristol, Secretary of Library committee.

EX-SH... NICHOLAS DEAD

Accidentally Asphyxiated at Atlantic City--His Unique Political Career.

Ex-Sheriff Alonzo Nicholas, of Doylestown, was found dead in his room at the Canada Hotel Atlantic and Connecticut avenues Atlantic City, at 8 30 o clock on Friday morning by servants and the odor of gas were attracted by the flood of gas pouring from his room

After an investigation by Police Sergeant Garrison and Coroner Taggart the statement was given out through the police that death by asphyxiation by illuminating gas of being an accidental

Turning off the gas at a small radiator instead of at the will for the apparently caused the fatality The police Friday morning, found the stop cock on the radiator turned off while the gas poured from the fittings at the wall which were far from being secure

DISCOVERED BY A MAID

One of the maids in the house, her duties in the upper floor noticed the fumes She notified Eddie Horton son of the proprietress who forced open the door The man was in his night clothes, with his best apparel neatly arranged at out his room

Nicholas reached the Boardwalk Thursday afternoon He went to Atlantic City in the interest of Wilson H Swartley & Co of West State street Doylestown He will be buried as the family in Doylestown were notified of his death Funeral Director H W Atkinson sent an assistant to Atlantic City to take charge of the remains which were forwarded to Sheriff Nicholas' home at West Court and West streets, Doylestown on Saturday

The funeral was held from that place at 11 o clock on Tuesday morning The interment was made at Riegelsville

UNIQUE POLITICAL CAREER

Like his ancestors Mr Nicholas was a Republican and took an active interest in politics He was elected Director of the Poor in 1905 and served for three years In 1908 he was nominated by the Republicans for Sheriff and after an exciting campaign he was elected by 11-3 majority over the Democratic candidate George W Bachman, one of the leading residents of the county

Sheriff Nicholas had a decidedly turbulent term in the Sheriff office His administration at the jail was the subject of an inquiry by the State Board of Charities While great laxity in management was shown by the testimony, nothing of a criminal nature was traced either to the Sheriff or his jailers, upon which the Board of Charities thought prosecution could be sustained However the investigation Sheriff Nicholas introduced sweeping reforms in the management of the institution and during the remainder of his term it was a model jail During his term of office Sheriff Nicholas hanged William Burt, the half-breed Indian who brutally murdered in cold blood an aged couple Samuel M and Jemima Rightly slaying them in bed with a hatchet while they slept in the early morning at their humble home in Northampton township

Upon several occasions since his retirement from the Sheriff's office he had been an unsuccessful candidate for county office He was a candidate at the Republican primary election last September for Director of the Poor In 1899 he made an aggressive campaign for the appointment of Surveyor of the Port at Philadelphia and in 1901 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Assembly

Some of Sheriff Nicholas campaigning methods were striking in their originality In his campaign for Sheriff, while canvassing one of the river townships he lost his hat. This incident was commented upon in the newspapers and acted as a surprising boomerang in his favor Though a trifling thing in itself the incident was magnified in a hundred varied ways and brought the candidate, who industriously circulated the story himself strongly into the limelight as a hustling canvasser

In 1902 when he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Assembly from the Middle District, ex-sheriff Nicholas issued a circular which attracted much attention not only in the county, but all over Eastern Pennsylvania It was commented upon widely by the press The first page bore a pictorial design, surrounded by a border of ears of corn in the husk and cabbage heads and leaves At the top of the design was an outline picture hat with the inscription, "Lost hat returned" There were pen and ink sketches of the old style grain cradle and a standing sheaf of wheat, the figure of a farmer cutting corn and another drilling wheat One of the mottoes on the design was 'Plow deep while sluggards sleep, And you will have corn to sell and keep"

On a scroll was the invitation' Vote for the Farmer's Candidate Alonzo Nicholas, of Doylestown, for Assembly, Middle District" In the centre of the title page was a half tone plate from a photo of the ex-sheriff, taken in a field on his Nockamixon farm The Sheriff was represented as driving a pair of horses to a plow On one of the horses was suspended a placard inscribed, "A Good Farmer Makes a Good Legislator" The inside pages contained a brief sketch of Mr Nicholas' career Thousands of these circulars were distributed throughout the county, but this time the Sheriff's novel scheme failed, for a combination made by the Republican machine against him defeated him in the convention on September 1 of that year

FOUGHT THE OLD "COMBINE"

There was a great crowd at that convention, and what was then known as the Gilkeson-Minster-Yardley Grundy Combine had brought thousands of delegates to the convention on free railroad and dinner tickets It was expected that there would be a big fight between the combine and independents on Senate and Assembly, but at the last moment, Senator Hampton W Rice and Captain Frank G Edwards, leaders of the anti-machine forces, and candidates for Senate and Assembly withdrew, leaving Sheriff Nicholas and Harry Neamand to fight the Combine alone On the morning of convention day Sheriff Nicholas posted the town with unique handbills, containing short, terse phrases designed to catch the attention of the delegates. He also hired a donkey cart and placarded the cart and animal, which was drawn through the crowd that choked the streets This was the last big fight the old Combine ever made, as they were signally defeated in the election which followed by a fusion of Democrats and insurgent Republicans, the fusion ticket making a practically clean sweep of the county in November

Sheriff Nicholas had many good qualities and those who knew him all his life were closely attached to him He had a sunny temperament and was always in good humor He had an obliging disposition which manifested itself at all times in endeavors to help his friends in need to the extent of his ability to do so.

"I find that Brother Linkum has very liberal religious views," said the new pastor to one of his deacons. "Yes," replied the deacon, "Brother Linkum is more liberal in his views than in his contributions."

Briggs: "I have made a will leaving my brain to the hospital, and have just got an acknowledgment from the authorities." Lofty: "Were they pleased?" Briggs: "They wrote that every little helped."

Love, like coin, is tested by the ring.

Told in Kippewa House.

Editor Gazette.—One evening last October I was one of a group of guests sitting in the circle of warmth coming from a hot stove in the second floor hall of the Kippewa House, Kippewa, Quebec The town is the jumping off place of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the north-east woods Our conversation had been dull till the clerk of the house came up with the announcement that his sportship's highness, one of the very wealthy men who come to this section for their summer and fall outings, was down at the lake dock and would be up to the hotel in a few minutes

"You're in for a treat," said the clerk "for this man can talk He hasn't been in from the woods for five or six weeks and he'll be full of news and glad of the opportunity to have people to talk to"

We all braced up, glad to welcome the promised excitement In a sparsely settled country like this every individual is a big live unit and of course, the interest increases in direct proportion to the rating of the individual. We hear a determined racket down below One of the guests slips forward, looks down over the balustrade, comes back to us and says softly "Yes, he's arrived." We all go down stairs.

His sportship is there, resplendent in plaid costume of norfolk jacket coat with knickerbockers and cap to match, and with Canadian knit stockings and moccasins to complete his outward apparel He is well groomed and looks to have been well fed for some time for he is very rotund of face, body and limbs I would judge his weight at two hundred pounds He greets us heartily.

"Glad to see you' It's fine to see somebody besides you men Clerk, there's a bag of trout, today's catch, maybe you would like to have them for your hotel breakfast tomorrow. If so, you're welcome to them"

The fish are received gladly and sent back to the kitchen department But the governor has a parade following in his wake We hear footsteps approaching outside then, a colored man enters carrying baggage He is very shiny and soft of voice and surely is able to make the two hundred and fifty pound weight on any standard scales go up bounding "That's his valet," the clerk whispers to me, and he attends his master as though he were a child, and the valet is down on the pay roll at five dollars a day"

A Scotch-Indian carrying an enormous moose head marched in next

That's his guide," says the clerk aside to me, "he draws three dollars a day" A Swede camp cook, also with a big game head, came in next, and I am informed at once that he gets four dollars a day from the same pocket book as the other two men

We gazed in wonder at the game and almost forgot to compliment his sportship on his success However, we did do so finally The huntsman thanks us and says "We've had good luck this fall. I shot that big head and the guide shot the other one I bought a license for the guide so he could shoot one, and I'm going to have both heads mounted and return the guide's head to him"

The heads are stored away for the night, the guide and cook get lodging, accommodations at the workingmen's bunk house at the end of the town boardwalk, and the captain and his valet get the two best adjoining rooms on the second floor of the hotel Soon afterward the man in plaid comes out from his room and joins the group which has collected again at the stove in the second floor hall Of course, after September 15th you know that when people in that part of Canada rest they almost invariably rest near a stove It isn't very comfortable elsewhere.

After taking the chair offered, and crossing one round leg over the other, our new guest proceeds to give vent to his six weeks of stored up conversation We are ready with our attention, in fact, there is nothing to detract it

Oh my' but I'm full of food," he start I had a big trout, with coffee for an early breakfast this morning, two broiled partridges at about ten thirty, bacon and beans about four o'clock, and then just before I came in this evening I ate two plates of flapjacks with tea. Oh, this is a great country to give you an appetite' I never felt better in my life than just at this moment "Don't I look it (He did) "The only trouble with me is that I can't walk fast, my legs are too fat I can keep going all day but it's at a very slow pace Slim people are best for getting over the ground"

This section of country' he continued is the healthiest I've ever seen in For two hundred miles in all directions breezes blow to us through pine forests. Nothing is better than pine and the other evergreens we have here If this place was handy to some big city like New York it would be filled with sanatariums"

Speaking of game, I've been coming up here for several years, and have watched the moose getting scarcer every year till this year, but now today there are more plentiful than I've ever known them to be. I think the reason is that all the old shanty loafers have cleared out. Some have gone to work for the lumber companies and others have drifted back to Ottawa I've known those fellows, when here to have fresh moose meat on their tables the year round, and, of course, they can catch fish when they want them At first, I wondered how they lived with it working, but I see, now how they did so With all that food at hand, and with a few otter and other skins to sell to get enough money with which to buy clothes, their living came right to them"

Speaking for myself moose hunting doesn't come up to trout fishing Trolling is the real sport. I like to go out in my canoe for an hour at sunrise and then again at sunset and try for the big fellows. They are live game let me tell you. I've been all around Kippewa lake hunting for the best fishing Jaw bone's bay is very good and it's near here. Trout and pike are there in plenty if you can find them That's one of the reasons I'm staying here tonight so I can get out there early tomorrow Right now, the fore part of October, is the best time of the year for trolling Trout are spawning—laying their eggs—now They spawn in very deep water thirty to fifty feet probably, and the water has to be very cool to suit them Big ten to twenty-five pounds, trout are such a hardy cold water fish and stay at such depths in the big lakes that we can't troll for them very successfully with spoon hooks Small five to eight pounders are what we generally get."

'You know' our man of the hour continued, I have a club house of my own up the lake, and I have leased the hunting rights for several square miles around there. Also, I have leased the fishing rights to several of the medium sized lakes hereabouts Now then I take is just below here and there are good bass and pickerel to be caught there. The fishing is mine but if you people would like to try your luck down there it's all right go ahead, you're welcome" (Such patronizing' It almost dumbfounded us but we manage to mumble our thanks)

After a pause some one asks our entertainer if he has heard any more mining talk "No," he replies, "there hasn't been a man at the club house with a piece of rock for a year or two They bothered the life out of me for a while there. Everybody was chipping rocks, filling their pockets with samples and bringing them to me and wanting me to send them south to be analyzed I'm glad the boom's over"

Changing the topic again our speaker said 'Coming down the lake I passed two gangs of lumbermen, wild men I call them, going out to their winter camps for tree cutting and logging These men were collected in Ottawa and other towns and brought up here in a bunch Some of them come up every winter It's a wonder how those fellows can stand working in the woods with the thermometer at fifty below. I've often asked them what they wear when it's so cold, and I've always got the same reply 'Sweater and mackinaw pants.' For their footwear they use four pairs of heavy knit socks, four on each foot, outside of these comes the sheepskin slipper, fur inside, and outside of the regulation moccasin a number eight foot has to have about a number eleven moccasin to accommodate all this packing."

"And oh, before I turn in for the night I want to tell you what I heard about the new Transcontinental Railway the government is financing. There is a section of road being graded about 50 hundred miles north of here There is a big gang of men working there and they are isolated from any regular base of supplies, so, of course, they often run short of provisions Some of the stuff is being carried and portaged from here. A man will start out with a canoe load, paddle to the far end of the lake, unload, carry the canoe and food stuff to the next lake in the line of the journey, reload and paddle on again to the next landing, and so on till he gets there. I saw one of the porter guides who did this and he said it wasn't any picnic either He said also that flour had sold as high, there, as twenty-eight dollars a bag, three dollars for the flour, and twenty-five dollars for delivery And for meat he says they are simply living on bacon, the standard diet for all good northern Canadians"

P S —In my last week's article "Told in Toronto Station," which appeared in this paper, I should have stated at the conclusion that the young man, after telling me his story, waited for his girl till far into the night He sat beside me the entire time and kept a constant watch at the station gateway through which she must come if she came at all But she did not appear and great was his disappointment

Calendar--1912.

The rising and the setting sun,
The waxing and the waning moon,
The Summer's beauty just begun,
The Autumn's glory fading soon,
Now in Winter's arms she sleeps
The weary earth, oh let her rest,
Till at her doors the voice of Spring,
Proclaims another welcome guest.
Thus on, from year to year we fly,
Nought in heaven the silence breaking,
Sun, and moon, and stars go by,
No answer to our questions making—
Who is God? and who am I?
In earthly house with roof so high?
Who are these around me here
A little while, then disappear?
What is time, a coming going?
Space and motion through it flowing?
Numbers which its deeds express?
Life and all its loveliness?
And when the soul withdraws its breath
Then oh tell me what is death?
I sleep, I dream, in dreadful place,
A spirit passes' hide my face!
I hear a voice, it saith
To know not God is death.
God is a spirit whom to know
Is life eternal free from woe
God is a spirit whom to see
Is heaven and all its joys to be
God is a spirit Only One
Creator Spirit, Father, Son
The breath of life to us he brought,
And we are spirits, awful thought.
God is our only dwelling place.
We cannot live in time or space

Bala, January 31st

Parkland Pointers.

Mrs. Harry Johnson has returned home after a two weeks' visit in Bristol

Mr and Mrs Henry Thomsen entertained friends on Saturday evening of last week

Miss Clara Kuhlmann has returned to Parkland after spending a few weeks in the city.

Many of the people are still with out water at their homes owing to the bursting of the pipes by the severe cold a few weeks ago

The children and young people had a most delightful time coasting on the side hills last week during the beautiful moonlight evenings

Mrs Annie B Fuller is reported to be improving from injuries sustained by falling down her cellar steps at her home in Camden, N J., though still unable to walk

The names of pupils who attended regularly during the month of January are as follows Earl Schock, Austin Jones, Elizabeth Buckman, Marguerite Schock, Hazel Schock and Julia Beck George Beck missed one half day and Hobson Jones was absent one day.

All the many friends of the First Association of Spiritualists will be pleased to learn that it will very soon install a new pipe organ at the Temple 12th and Thompson streets, Philadelphia, sufficient money for that purpose having recently been raised through donations.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Sarah Dutton, of Vineland, N. J., is recovering from the serious injuries received near Rochester, N. Y, last fall, as she was in one of the cars wrecked by falling over the embankment Mrs Dutton is the daughter of Mrs Mary J Jennings, of "Pioneer Cottage," on the Heights, where she spends her summers.

Work is progressing finely on the new addition to the house at "Compton Farm," and when completed the family will move into it from the main building, which will then undergo complete changes resulting in an up-to-date country home to accommodate two families, as Dr S Merrill Weeks and family, of Philadelphia will spend their summers on the farm and are looking forward to that time with great pleasure.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

THOUGH he has repeatedly declared that he is not a candidate for the Chicago nomination, the belief persists that circumstances might arise which would prevent Colonel Roosevelt from refusing the honor if it should be thrust upon him. Unique among ex-presidents, he holds a position of unquestionable tactical advantage which has for months made political observers hang upon his words and attach importance to his very silences. With the prestige of his forceful personality and his picturesque career, Theodore Roosevelt is a figure in the presidential contest as to whose action all other competitors must feel a nervous uncertainty until the winner breasts the tape in the Coliseum next June.

The Gazette Post Card Canv[illegible] Shows Roosevelt Choice of Republicans.

The first returns from the Gazette's post card canvass for Presidential preference, which is now in progress, is printed herewith.

The returns printed are from about 1500 postals that have been mailed. In all 4000 cards will be sent to voters in every district in the county. From the returns received it will be seen that Colonel Roosevelt is the overwhelming choice of the Republicans, and Woodrow Wilson a decided Democratic favorite.

The Gazette's campaign is conducted on the fairest possible basis, the cards being mailed systematically to names appearing upon the official registry list of voters in each election district in the county.

The return cards contain many interesting features, some of the voters writing their expressions of sentiment upon the postals.

Further returns from the canvass will be printed next week.

WOODROW WILSON

THE candidacy of the former president of Princeton university makes the expression "the scholar in politics" something more than a taunt in the mouths of politicians of the old type. During the time he has held office as governor of New Jersey Woodrow Wilson has made it evident that, though he was before his election without practical experience in state or national politics, he is a man to be reckoned with by those who have played the game for many years. His administration has shown him to be the possessor of original ideas and of the force to carry them out, and his speeches delivered throughout the country have added to his popularity. The withdrawal at his own request of the formal support of Harper's Weekly, which has been his foremost newspaper advocate, has added interest to his campaign to secure the nomination at Baltimore.

HULMEVILLE NOTES

Mrs. Jacob Scarborough will lead Christian Endeavor next Sunday evening. Topic—"The Home Missionary Whose Life Most Inspired Me."

Our Great Combination Offer.

The Farm Journal is certainly "unlike any other paper." For one thing, it guarantees all its advertisements, so if you lose by a dishonest advertiser, just write to the publishers, and they will see that the loss is made good. By special arrangement we can give you the Bucks County Gazette for one year and the Farm Journal for five years, BOTH for $1.00, which is no more than the price of his paper alone. Send the order with the money to this office. Not to-morrow, but to-day.

When the world blames and slanders us, our business is not to be vexed at it, but rather to consider whether there is any foundation for it, any truth at bottom, though there be exaggeration and mistake. We know a person may always gain good to his own soul, gain instruction and useful suggestion, by the mistakes of the world about him.

"Which would you rather do, Jarlie, kiss a girl on her lips or on her eyes?"

"Her eyes, of course. You have to do it twice to cover the ground."

LETTER FROM DOYLESTOWN

Doylestown, February 21.

Politics has attracted more attention at the county seat during the past week than it did during the protracted cold weather. Both candidates for the Republican nomination for Congress are hustling for all they are worth and the campaign grows more strenuous daily. Both are receiving reports from their supporters in the outlying districts of Bucks county "of a most encouraging character" but on top of this is a most discouraging rumor from them both. It comes from Montgomery county, the other half of the congressional district, and after having been carefully sifted amounts to this: The Montgomery county Republicans of both the machine and anti-machine strife allege that the contest is so warm in Bucks county that regarding the best interests of the party only the nomination should go to Montgomery county again and that sometime in the future when the party is in better accord in Bucks county the nomination may be conceded to Bucks. This looks as though the Montgomery county friends of Croft thought they saw a good chance to slip in and secure him the coveted prize. Just what the bosses think of this is not known but as forewarned is forearmed they have probably issued orders to their henchmen to watch this move and block it at all hazards. Just how it will influence Bucks county votes is another problem to be solved for if a large block of them should decide to go Croftwards, as is deemed more than possible, it would surely nominate him and Bucks might look on for another twenty years and keep her favorite sons at home and in training for our turn.

The Democracy have a very pretty family quarrel on their hands in the election of National and State delegates. The Guffey-DeWalt-Hall-Donnelly-Ryan faction, who now have a tight grip on the party machinery, have their candidates, and the Guthrie-Palmer-McCormick faction, who claim to be the only regulars, have their candidates, and the voters who, in all human probability neither know nor care which faction is regular and which is not, will vote for the man they like the best and in whose political accumen they have the most confidence. Most of them are looking for a leader, one who will change defeat to victory for them and give them the offices. So far he has not materialized and it is not at all probable he will and in the meantime Pete, by his seductive methods, can obtain all the Democrats he wants just when he needs them most.

The County Commissioners have at last yielded to a strong public sentiment and have decided to "touch up" the Court House. In the process of touching up, a practical painter, after a careful examination of the outside of the building, said that the first coat would be quickly absorbed and fail to make very much of a showing and that at least two coats would be positively needed and that after they had been applied the "touching up" process would amount to something. In addition to the painting there will be new hangings put up in the court room and the several offices will receive their long-needed attention. The Sheriff's office is in a disgraceful condition and has been for several years. The windows will also have to be repaired or they will fall out owing to the decaying of the sash due to the lack of any kind of care or attention. The commissioners will find that in repairing the past neglect of years they will have a good sized contract on their hands and that it will cost more than the price of a concrete bridge over some small stream. However it is better late than never and as the repairs will probably be thorough it is a good thing that nothing has been done to relieve the congestion in the Recorder's office and the transcribers are filling book after book with records with no place to put them where they can be properly cared for.

The Borough Fathers had a long and interesting session on Monday night at which personal remarks not calculated to flatter the recipient were indulged in to a considerable extend. The main discussion was over the appointment of a Tree Commission to look after the shade trees of the borough under an Act of Assembly. At this suggestion the majority of the town council balked, intimated that they were better able to look after the trees than a commission, true, they had never done so, but nevertheless they felt that it was a reflection on their ability to do anything and everything necessary for the welfare of the borough, but that if a committee of three expert councilmen were appointed to supervise the commission and if the commission would agree to do as it was told why, if it pleased the taxpayers, they might have their commission and it would be treated just as other matters of benefit and interest are: that is it would be taken up some time next winter, because the late spring and all summer would have to be devoted by the energetic councilmen in enforcing the ordinance requiring snow to be cleared from the sidewalks. They felt sure that all of July and August would have to be devoted to snow, but that as soon as the ground was properly frozen, preferably after a heavy snow fall, the would abandon the cleaning off of snow and devote their time to the consideration of planting shade trees and remove any tree they saw fit. In the event of the owner of the property putting up a kick because his tree was cut down then the commission must shoulder all blame and responsibility, but if the owner was entirely satisfied and pleased with the removal of the tree then the advisory committee of three councilmen would appropriate the praise. They also decided that they would buy their coal direct from the mines and graciously permit the local dealers to haul it to the works at a price per ton to be fixed by council. As the monthly of May is so close at hand they decided to get a dog catcher and have everything ready to catch untagged doggies.

All of the Committees of the County Seat-Centennial and Old Home Week are busily at work and with the amount of interest and enthusiasm it will be the finest ever. It is estimated that it will take about five thousand dollars to carry out all of the plans and it is anticipated that but very little difficulty will be encountered in raising the required funds and more too if necessary to make everything a grand success and everyday of this week a memorable one in the history of the County Seat.

On last Saturday night the entire police force of the County Seat was needed to cope with the drunks and five of them full of bottled joy, landed in jail. An old resident of the town said that there had been more drunkeness noticed on the streets in the last six months than ever before and that it seemed to be on the increase. Many of them are regular offenders, as they say themselves, the punishment is so light that they rather enjoy the notoriety for our magistrates have carried their ideas of leniency to the verge of the ridiculous in nearly every case allowing the offender to go on payment of the costs, if he has them, and without payment of anything rather than lock him up. A few ten to sixty days sentences would tend to break up the public exabitions these men make of themselves so frequently; that or a better observance of the liquor law by the license holders.

G. Company of the National Guards is about the only company giving an annual Military Ball. The one last Friday was the most successful and enjoyable of any yet given and was attended by nearly four hundred people who tripped the light fantastic until the wee small hours. Many of the guests were from out of town and the girls had a change from their old fellables for once.

The Bucks County Poultry Association, S. B. Denlinger, president, have closed up their accounts of the recent poultry show, held in the Armory and find that their receipts far exceeded their expenses, and that a handsome balance in [illegible] usually the balance is on the other side. They will hold their next show January 15, 16 and 17, 1913, in the Armory. A number of new members were elected, among them men from Quakertown and Newtown. At the next exhibition owing to some dissatisfaction, there will be two Judges, one of American and the other of Mediterranean birds.

On last Sunday night Camp 631 P. O. S. of A. attended the Reformed church in observance of Lincoln Day and Washington's birthday and listened to an able and patriotic sermon by Rev. L. S. Helick.

This week our basketball team will play three games, one at Quakertown for the championship of Bucks county. If they lose this game there will be a tie with Quakertown and the deciding game will have to be played off on some neutral floor, probably at Lansdale.

Snow and ice are gradually disappearing from our streets but all of the weather prophets agree in saying that winter is not over and that a March blizzard is almost a certainty. This is not very agreeable news for our business men who suffered from dull times during the exceedingly cold weather and who are now making up for lost time. Business is very much better since the thaw set in, at the county seat at least.

On Monday the County Commissioners awarded another bridge contract, that of Dark Hollow Bridge, near New Hope. Carl C. Camp, of Montrose, was the successful bidder. He will do the work for $784.00. The other bidders were Sigafoos & Rosenbaum, $883.00 and the Riegleville Construction Co., $1000.21.

For many weeks past the children and young people at this place have had a delightful time coasting and skating, but all now seem pleased at the break in the extreme cold and almost spring like days this week—even the honey bees were out on Monday enjoying the beautiful sunshine.

"Temperance" was the subject last Sunday at the Progressive Lyceum at "Floral Heights."

"There's temperance in eating and temperance in drinking;
There's temperance in standing and temperance in thinking;
There's temperance in laughing and temperance in talking;
There's temperance in running and temperance in walking;
There's temperance in working and temperance in sleeping;
There's temperance in playing and temperance in weeping."

"I used a word in speaking to my wife which offended her sorely. She hasn't spoken to me in a week," said a sad husband to a friend. The friend's face lighted up instantly as he asked. "Would you mind telling me what it was?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

"The Raven" Up-to-Date.

With most humble apologies to Edgar Allan Poe (Written for the Gazette by Roy Tracy)

Once upon a midnight dreary while I pondered weak and weary,
Dodging slimy, oozy scandals and inquisitors galore
Raging inward, hot and panting suddenly there came a tapping
As of some one gently rapping tapping at my chamber door
Some lo insurgent there, I muttered, knocking me a little more,
This it is and nothing more

Ah, distinctly I remember, twas of Nineteen Twelve November
That my thoughts were prone to wander and it's mysteries explore
Eagerly I wished the morrow, vainly did I seek to borrow
From "Lory Drake' surcease of sorrow, sorrow for lost Theodore
For that tactful Latin scholar whom I swapped for Jack pot Lorimer
And got stung a little more.

As those fantastic shapen phantoms neared and egged me at random,
Vainly did I seek to fathom how to be big
Bill once more,
And send those Wiley goblins flying, with their doomful prophesing,
And their doleful summarizing that I'm done for, evermore
That my temperament judicial now a benzoated pickle
Will lie in brine for evermore

Again that solemn weird like tapping loud and more insistent rapping
Thrilled me with a feeling that I was wanted at the door
Wanted to explain the meaning the real substance main meaning
Of the Guggenheimer's scheming to swipe Alaska a golden shore.
So with steps both strong and steady with Wickersham's opinions ready
Open wide I threw the door

Deep into that darkness peering long I stood there wondering fearing
That the darkness and it's meaning was oblivion evermore
Strangely then I thought of Teddy strenuous still I felt quite ready
To snuggle up to my old steady and marsh again with Theodore
To say "bye-bye" to Charlie Taft and with "The Big Stick" for a raft,
Sail the seas with Theodore

Still those fitful, idle musings of my feverish fancies choosings
Most feverishly burned within me as I closed the outer door
For I seemed to hear the beating as of wings against the ceiling
Surely now, I kept repeating surely that is within my door
Then I broke the weird like silence with words of reckless wild defiance
For I was getting somewhat sore

"In the saintly name of Penrose angel demon or who e'er goes Prowling thus in ghostly fashion, get thee gone for evermore."
And to these words were scarcely spoken when from behind my silken curtains
Stalked a grave and solemn raven of the saintly days of yore
Perches he on the bust of Charlie the golden bust of brother Charlie
Guarding well my inner door

This unhallowed like invasion of my chamber by a raven
Shocked me, set me shaking as I never shook before
But presently my nerves grew stronger hesitating then no longer

"Bird," said I, or Demon, truly your forgiveness I implore
But my I ask when we'll be parting when from my chamber you'll be starting
Quoth the Raven, 'Nevermore

That reply so aptly given by that weird like blinking raven
Set me shaking with a laughing that became a mighty roar
"Oh, Bird quoth I I'm surely thinking, you're not wise to whom you're speaking.
For many's the goat I have in keeping to remove you from my door
For Adonis like I'm bound a wooing, with Nineteen Twelve there's something doing,
And chaste must be my chamber door

But the Raven gave no token that it heard a word I'd spoken
And a sickening dread oppressed me what was back of NEVERMORE
Back of that one word and sentence back of that mysterious presence
With it's sinister resemblence to the fate of Aaron Burr
With all party pledges broken and Teddy policies forsaken
Am I shelved for evermore!

Can I not ermore be trusted has all faith in me been busted
Smashed to smithereens by tactics leading to my chamber door
Reciprocity all muddled, monetary plans befuddled
Magazines not yet bemuzzled, growling just outside my door
"Tell me is there balm in Gilead for a mortal thus afflicted?
Can I come back again once more?

But the Raven ruffled his plumes
From his perch above the door
Stood on one leg head cocked sideways
Gravely winked but nothing more

NEW OLEO LAW PROPOSED.

The agricultural committee in Congress has drafted a bill regulating the taxing and ... alleviate the cotton textile mills, passed a law reducing the hours of labor per week from fifty-six to fifty-four hours per week.

These strikers are practically all foreigners, who have driven the American workmen out of the textile mills in the Lawrence district and still there are found men who will accept the high tariff the name of the Act to be officially shortened to "margarin"—shall be offered for sale only in half-pound and pound prints, wrapped and sealed by a long narrow revenue stamp, the stamp not to be broken until the package reaches the consumer's hands. The tax is to be one cent per pound, and the manufacturer may color his product as much or as little as he chooses. The revenue stamp is sufficient notfication to the purchaser that he is not buying dairy butter.

The present law taxes uncolored oleo one-fourth cent a pound and the colored article ten cents—the color increasing the tax rate forty fold. The effect of the law was to practically prohibit the sale of colored oleo, as at all ordinary times it could not profitably compete with dairy butter and pay the tax. The 10-cent tax was shrewdly evaded many times by the admixture of yellow ingredients in the oleo, sufficient to color the whole mass to resemble June butter, the courts holding that "essential ingredients" are not "artificial" coloring, and therefore admissible.

The proposed law will not encroach upon anybody's rights by permitting artificial butter to be made as pleasing to the eye and taste as possible and freely sold as an artificial product. The makers of dairy butter have sufficient protection in the intrinsic superiority of their goods. They have the rights to demand that oleo shall not masquerade as butter, and the right is better assured under the proposed law than under the present one.

Expert Reporters Go South With Ball Team.

In order that North American readers may be kept in touch with the spring training of the Phillies and Athletics, The North American is sending its two strongest sporting writers with the teams, and their daily stories will record the preparation of the two teams, with especial reference to the work of the youngsters.

With the Phillies will go James C. Isaminger, The North American's noted baseball humorist, who is lauded for his "Spotlights" and "Tips From the Sporting Ticker," appearing on the Magazine Page of the North American every Sunday, and the "inside Stuff" column, which is a daily feature.

The Athletics will be accompanied by The North American's sporting editor, George M. Graham, well known throughout the state for his relations to the Tri-state, Susquehanna, New York State and other leagues.

If you want the best accounts of the preliminary work of the contenders for National and American League honors, order The North American now. You are then sure to stick to it the whole season through.

I wish to deform the little ... the Courier's statement ... the stores contribute but little ... the real prosperity of the town.

In Bristol there are five of these stores owned by non-residents. These stores employ about thirty clerks, all residents of Bristol whom are paid, at the least calculation, $200 per week or over ... per year. These stores pay ... $200 per month for the ... horses at local livery stables they pay $75 per month and $15 per month ... the blacksmiths for horse-shoeing.

Three of these stores—Childs Company—pay $160 per month to local expressman for hauling goods and per month for freight charges on ... trolley and boats.

Again these five chain stores ... the best customers that ... farmers have, as all vegetables ... products of the farms sold in these ... are purchased here at home.

These stores are also liberal and consistant contributors to every ... ment that is for the welfare of ... town, whether it is for church ... fairs, fire company benefits ... public celebrations.

I think it is a mean contemptible spirit which prompts the singling out of an enterprise which is an advantage to the town in order to redress a fancied grievance. I think these stores and everyone connected with them have more patriotic pride in the town than the editor who is hired under contract, who has repeatedly tried to injure the business of legitimate firms in the borough.

STORE MANAGER.

Down in Tennessee

Knoxville, Tenn February 19

Editor Gazette—A sojourn of two days in this city of eighty thousand inhabitants has demonstrated that it is one of rare beauty. Its situation is most picturesque, as its built among the hills. The fine residential section is located on the slopes and summits, the business portion being in the lower level. The distinctive feature of the first is the wide well paved street, with two rows of trees on each side, mostly elms. The magnolias that adorn the lawns are especially noteworthy for size and symmetry, some of them, with their beautiful glossy leaves, being as large as our average maple. On the most prominent heights is the campus and various buildings of the University of Tennessee, an educational institution dating way back in the history of the State. From all the elevated grounds can be seen the Tennessee river winding it's way among the foothills of the Smoky Mountains, and further back the highest peaks of this range can be seen. The only boats that navigate the river are the old style stern paddle wheelers and they do certainly look out of date.

The city of Knoxville has just passed under Commission form of government the Democratic mayor for three successive previous terms having been elected over the citizens ticket by fourteen majority. His election is contested on grounds of fraud and he has not yet been seated for his fourth term.

The water works are owned by the city, a commission being in charge, and the financial results are said to be very satisfactory, the city reaping quite a profit therefrom. A private corporation owns the electric light plant and transit company, both being operated from one large plant, with large earnings.

The city of Asheville, N. C., has lost none of its charms. Our friends met us at Biltmore, the great Vanderbilt estate of 120,000 acres, with an automobile took us through a portion of it and up a fine macadam road to the top of a mountain in the suburbs of Asheville. From the summit, three range of the 'Smokies' could be seen, and covered with snow, as we were in fact could almost imagine we were riverland among Alpine peaks. In fact we hardly realized we were even in the south borderland as today I saw a snow man six feet high on one of the lawns, built yesterday by the children.

38 Chickens-523 Eggs.

Editor Gazette—I read in the "Gazette" of February 9, 1912, William M Remine's account of what his flock of chickens had done during the month of January, 1912, and as I can beat his figures I thought I would reply. During the same month, my flock, consisting of ten hens and twenty-eight pullets, White Wyandotte stock, laid five hundred and twenty-three (523) eggs. In November, 1911, they laid three hundred and five (305), and in December 1911, three hundred and ninety-five (395) making the total for three months, twelve hundred and twenty-three (1223) eggs. I agree with Mr. Remine that it pays to keep a few chickens.

Yours truly,
THEO. BENNETT

Big Shipment of Leghorns.

John H. Hellerman, of Doylestown, one of the largest raisers of White Leghorn chickens in this section of the country, shipped eight hundred thoroughbred single-comb fowls, Friday, to a customer in Oakland, Oregon.

They were shipped from Newtown, in a car specially chartered for the purpose and in charge of a man. It was the biggest consignment ever sent from this section and the transportation and care of 80 coops of chickens in transportation cost $400.

Voted for Large Cars to Torresdale.

As the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Street Railway Company is unable to arrange with the connecting company at Torresdale to exchange its large new cars for the same light cars of the Frankford, Tacony and Holmesburg Company for through service to Frankford, it was a question with the managers of the local road whether it was better to operate the new cars from Bristol to Torresdale, making it necessary for passengers to change cars at that point or whether to run the old cars and give the patrons a through service from Bristol to Frankford.

In order to get an expression from the riders of the road the trolley company decided upon a referendum and in last week's Gazette and another local paper, a coupon was printed and patrons of the road requested to express their choice of plans.

By an overwhelming majority the trolley riders expressed a preference to have the new large cars and change at Torresdale rather than have through service to Frankford in the small cars.

Up to Tuesday the votes returned were 405 for the large cars to 18 for through service to Frankford.

Aunt Spinsterly—I hope that your opinions uphold the dignity of our sex, Mamie, and that you believe that every woman should have a vote?

Mamie—I don't go quite so far as that, auntie; but I believe that every woman should have a voter.—McCall's Magazine.

Told in Kippewa House.

Editor Gazette.—One evening last October I was one of a group of guests sitting in the circle of warmth coming from a hot stove in the second floor hall of the Kippewa House, Kippewa Quebec. The town is the jumping off place of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the north east woods. Our conversation had been dull till the clerk of the house came up with the announcement that his sportship's highness, one of the very wealthy men who come to this section for their summer and fall outings, was down at the lake dock and would be up to the hotel in a few minutes.

"You're in for a treat," said the clerk "for this man can talk. He hasn't been in from the woods for five or six weeks and he'll be full of news and glad of the opportunity to have people to talk to."

We all braced up, glad to welcome the promised excitement. In a sparsely settled country like this an individual lays ... the organi... during close upon the disastrous campaign of 1910, The Democrat ... the position that there was urgent need for a thorough reorganization of the Democratic party of this state and urged that this organization should be undertaken at the first opportunity. That opportunity will present itself for the first time regularly in the next State Convention to be held at Harrisburg on the seventh day of May. The party demands new leadership in order that confidence may be restored. This does not mean that the present leaders should be read out of the party, for the Democratic party is now too small, but it does mean that new and younger men shall take charge of affairs and eliminate as much as possible the factional differences now existing so that all can work unitedly to a common purpose. The Democrat stands for reorganization in the State Convention."

In stating his position Thomas Cooper Elder of the Guthrie-McCormick election and candidate for National delegate says:

"I am for a thorough reorganization of the party and for the leadership of men whose unselfish devotion to the party will attract all faithful Democrats. I am unalterably opposed to the control of the State organization as it has been. Bucks county last year, without consultation with the standing committee or the voters, was placed in the position of voting to return to leadership self-constituted leaders and who had proved their incapacity by disrupting the party. If the issue is confined between these men and those who are called the 'reorganizers' I am for the reorganizers. We want leadership not dictatorship."

This Statement Not Correct

Wednesday's issue of the Doylestown Intelligencer states "Among the visitors to the county seat yesterday was Charles E Scott, of Bristol. Mr Scott is one of the best known men in Bristol and has the unique record of having been cashier of the Farmers National Bank of that place since 1847.

Mr and Mrs. Sterling Entertained.

On Tuesday a very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sterling, Falls township, when a number of friends were delightfully entertained. The time was spent in playing games and with vocal and instrumental music. Vocal solos were rendered by James McCorkle. After refreshments were served the guests departed thanking the host and hostess for the many pleasures of the evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell, Misses Ethel Lynn and Marguerite Campbell, of Emilie, Mr. and Mrs. William Spears and James A. McCorkle, of Philadelphia; Warren Allen and Miss Ethel White, of Trenton, Miss Mae Lynn, Fallsington, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sterling, Misses Agnes and Marion Sterling and Arthur Sterling.

The Martha Washington Supper.

The annual Martha Washington supper was given by the ladies of the Bristol Methodist Episcopal church on Tuesday evening in the banquet room of the church. There was a large attendance. As usual the tables were beautiful in decoration also were bountifully supplied with the good things to satisfy the inner man. The service was exceptionally good as it always is and all who partook of the repast were well pleased with the affair.

This annual supper is looked forward to with much interest and is attended by scores of persons who give their support and encouragement to the church in this manner.

The waitresses were ... Mrs. Jennie Worthington, Mrs. Clara Lefferts, Mrs. Charles J. Brudon, Mrs. Rilla Hunter, Mrs. William Betz, Mrs. Elwood W. Minster, Mrs. Harry Daniels, Miss May Sawyer, Miss Thornton, Mrs. F. W. Rushton, Mrs. Treslease, Mrs. Doron Green.

We cannot say just what amount was realized but feel sure that it was truly a financial success.

An electrician was hurt while helping to install telephone wires in the home of Mr. Brice on Holmeville road, Bensalem. While climbing a tree with his spurs the bark loosened from the tree and he fell to the ground. He was hurried in an automobile to the Frankford Hospital, where it was found his hip was dislocated.

Mrs. Cathrine Flum, of Bensalem, died Thursday of last week and was buried Sunday afternoon in the Bensalem M. E. church cemetery. An eloquent and appropriate sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Hoffman, pastor of the Bensalem Methodist Episcopal church, in the service at the church. Wm. M. Vandegrift, Mike McGinnis, Archibald Vandegrift, Edward Cryer and William Dyer were pall bearers. Mrs. Flum was 86 years old and was born in Wittenberg, Germany, in 1826 and lived in her home in Bensalem since 1875. Three sons, Fred, Daniel and Frank, and a daughter, Mrs. Hannah Flum Thackery, survive her. The dear old lady sitting on her porch on Sunday mornings, surrounded by her flowers, reading her German Bible is a pleasing picture cherished in the memory of many friends.

"Ben Hur" at the Forrest Theatre

Crowded houses, unlimited enthusiasm and a wonderful appreciation of Klaw & Erlanger's new and greater production of "Ben-Hur" at the Forrest Theatre have marked every performance in Philadelphia of this remarkable Twentieth Century religio-historic drama. The engagement is a limited one as arrangements have been completed for the presentation of this colossal spectacle on the Drury Lane Theatre, London, early in April.

The scenic investiture, the tremendous conception and the marvelous effects that have been produced by taking advantage of all the modern accessories to stagecraft have produced an ensemble that has been pronounced unequalled in the history of the American stage. The sensational chariot race has been emphasized by the introduction of twenty horses driven in five quadruple teams to chariots plunging at full speed over the stage arena at Antioch giving the appearance of one of the most exciting races of modern times.

The company that Klaw & Erlanger have assembled is in keeping with the dignity and magnificence of the new production. Richard Buhler, one of the handsomest leading men in America and a brilliant young actor, plays the Prince of the house of Hur. Oscar Adye, one of the finest and most distinguished character actors on the English stage and a great London favorite, was brought to America to play Simonides. Miss Marion Barney, a brilliantly beautiful woman and an accomplished actress, well known in Philadelphia from her long engagement with the Chestnut Street Theatre Stock, plays the siren Iras, and Miss Lillian Lawrence plays the Mother. Other well known actors in the cast are Mark Price, Edgewood Nowell, J. Arthur Young, Walter M. Sherwin, Schuyler Ladd, Edwin Cushman, George Sydenham, James F. Ayres, Rose Beaudet, Jean Marcet and Alice Haynes. Edgar Stillman Kelley's music is interpreted by a hundred trained voices, and an augmented orchestra under the leadership of Gustav Hinrich, is the well-known and popular grand opera director. More than 300 people take part in the ensembles of the new production. The curtain rises at 8 o'clock on the evening performances and at 2 o'clock for the matinees. Late comers will not be seated during the opening prelude. Matinees are on Wednesdays and Saturdays, the Wednesday matinees being at special popular prices, with no seats over one dollar.

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Bristol Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow citizens, address friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Bristol adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it:

Samuel Holt, 200 Otter St., Bristol, Pa., says. "I gladly allow the continued use of my name as a reference for the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. Two years ago a member of my family gave a public statement in their favor telling of my experience with them and at this time I gladly confirm it."

BRISTOL GIRLS' READING ROOM

On Thursday evenings from 7 30 to 10.00 p m , the Bristol high school building will be open for girls over 14 years of age Books of many kinds, magazines and papers, and the school library will offer all sorts of reading matter Any girl may come in at any time and stay as long as she wishes The one object in opening these rooms is that the girls may have a place to which they may go and spend the time pleasantly At present the building will be open but once a week, (Thursday evening) , but if the plan meets with favor and the girls desire it, the building will be ready for them oftener A committee of ladies with Miss Boggs have planned these evenings and some of them will always be present to see that each girl finds something to interest her. They hope that a large number will be present the first evening.

CORONER'S JURY EXONERATE CREW

Inquest Held at Morrisville Investigate in Death of Little Caroline Rose

Deputy Coroner Rue, of Bristol, summoned a jury and held an inquest last Saturday morning at Morrisville to determine the responsibility for the death of little Caroline Rose, the eight year-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Rose, of Morrisville, who was run over and killed by Car No 10 of the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Street Railway Company on Tuesday of last week

The jury was composed of Oscar F. Beck, James B Howell B F. Beck, Miles Lynn Enoch C Mount and Clarence Stott

The evidence of witnesses was heard, which showed that the accident was unavoidable, as far as the trolley crew was concerned

Owing to a crippled motor the car was running backward, when suddenly three children dashed in front of the car and the Rose girl was crushed under the wheels

The jury rendered the following verdict

That Caroline Rose came to her death accidentally by being crushed under car No 10, of the T B and P Street Railway Company, on Tuesday, February 13, 1912, at the corner of Pennsylvania and Vanzant avenue, Morrisville The said car was being run backward owing to the front part of the car being out of order.

The funeral services of the little victim were held in the Morrisville Baptist church on Friday. The Rev W P Johnston of Bristol officiated. Four of the deceased's little playmates acted as pall bearers Russell Moss, Martin Richey, Earl Hamilton and Austin Brown

There were many beautiful floral pieces from the public schools, the trolley company and many friends. Interment was made in Morrisville cemetery.

Preacher Flays the Verdict.

A press dispatch from Morrisville says The Rev G Koppel, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church of Morrisville in a sermon Sunday night before a congregation that crowded his church, severely criticised and censured the coroner s jury for the verdict rendered on Saturday in the case of Caroline Rose, the 7 year-old school child, killed by a trolley car there a few days ago

The minister protested against the verdict in the name of the boys and girls of Morrisville " He protested because the inquest was held in a hotel where women did not care to attend, and he condemned the officials for failure to summon more witnesses. He asserted that it was a case of "white wash " The whole town is wrought up by the verdict of accidental death and an effort will be made to carry the case up to the Grand Jury The matter is being discussed everywhere It is pointed out that only three witnesses were called, in addition to the crew Herbert Closson, motorman, and Frederick Borgmann, conductor of the car that killed the child s she was returning to her home from school

Comment is made because it is said that Constable Mason, recently employed by the Bristol trolley line for strike duty, picked the jury and summoned the witnesses

JOHN C. STUCKERT SERIOUSLY ILL

Operation at Jefferson Hospital Had to be Abandoned.

John C Stuckert Esq , prominent attorney of Bristol, is in a critical condition at the Jefferson hospital, where he was taken last week for the purpose of having an operation performed

Dr J F Wagner and Dr. Howard Pursell, of Bristol, were at the hospital, ready to assist at the operation which was to have been performed by Dr DeCosta the eminent surgeon. Mr Stuckert was placed under the influence of ether and taken to the operating room The surgeon made an incision on the median line of the abdomen and revealed such a serious condition of affairs that an immediate consultation was held for the purpose of deciding whether to proceed It was finally decided that it would be useless to proceed and the operation was abandoned

But little hope is entertained for his recovery Mr Stuckert is still at the hospital If he rallies sufficiently to stand the stress of the journey he will be brought home

Heard on the Street.

Here's a funny one I got on a Newtown trolley car the other day and handed the conductor a dollar bill. He said I can't change that, but if you have a five dollar note I can fix you up ' Well, the fellow had me guessing If he couldn't change a dollar, I couldn't see how he was going to change the larger note However I handed him the five and he gave me back a $2 50 gold piece, two one dollar bills and forty-five cents in small change —George L. Hern.

I wish you would send me another of those voting postal cards The one you did send me my sister got hold of, and marked it for Roosevelt and mailed it.—Arthur Wright.

Government Lot Exchanged.

The following little item which is simply a record of deeds recorded in the Recorder s office at Doylestown on Saturday, is evidence of the formal transfer of the postoffice site at Bristol It will be noticed that the government really transferred the Pond street site to the Jefferson Land Association nearly a year ago while the Forge Road property was transferred to the government last December The notice is as follows

Bristol—United States of America to the Jefferson Land Association. April 12 1911, lot. Jefferson Land Association to United States of America, Dec 23, 1911, lot.

8-YEAR-OLD BO... DROWNS IN C...NAL

Harold Myers Slips Through the Ice While Playing With Comp...ns.

Harold H Myers, the son of Mrs. John B Myers ...er street, lost his life by ... accidentally drowned last S... canal near Jefferson ave...

The little fellow with ... companions was playing ... the canal bank, Harold acting as horse, hauling the other two on a board, which he was hitched to with a rope

During their play, Harold apparently upset his companions from the improvised sled, and as he freed himself from the control of his driver in a spirit of make believe runaway as he had seen fractious horses do, he ran over the towpath a short distance then turned and made a dash over the icy surface of the canal, breaking through and before assistance could reach the lad he was dead

Harry Bostine, who was working near Grundy s mill, heard the cries of the drowned boy's playmates and hastening to the canal bank, the board used as a sled which was on the ice near the hole where the boy disappeared, gave him an idea of what had occurred. Crawling over the ice he caught the board and with the aid of the rope attached, which had been fastened to the boy's arms as remains he pulled the little fellow ashore and with the assistance of Allan Gilbert and William Priestly they rolled the boy on the bank in an effort to restore him to life.

Although the body was still warm the efforts of the two men assisted by a physician were in vain and the lifeless form of the lad was later viewed by Deputy Coroner Harvey S Rue and then taken to his mother s home.

The funeral was held on Wednesday and interment was made at the Bristol cemetery

Harold was a bright and companionable little fellow and that morning had assisted his mother who is a widow, with her household duties

An Appreciation of Dr. Mitchell at 83.

New York Herald, February 15.

Dr S Weir Mitchell, probably the most distinguished of living physicians in America, reaches his eighty-third year today. He is in the best sense of the expression a national character While probably the greatest of our physicians, he occupies a front rank among our literary men He is a typical example of the aphorism that ' It is not work, but worry, that kills "

He has literally done two men's work Few literary men have as much good writing to their credit as he, though his medical colleagues are quite ready to confess that his original investigations have been most helpful to them in medicine and many a great physician in a lifetime has accomplished less.

Himself a nerve specialist, Dr. Mitchell insists that his prolonged bodily and mental health is largely due to the fact that he had two very different occupations of mind for interests in life. Like our own Oliver Wendell Holmes, instead of wearing himself out employing his brain constantly with one set of interests he turned from one to the other, giving brain tissues a chance for needed complete rest The lesson of his life is worth while emphasizing.

May he live to see many more birthdays in order to exemplify the precious lesson so much needed for our Americans of to-day, that concentration of mind on one narrow interest is wasting That cultivation of a hobby, or better still, an avocation quite different from a man's vocation, broadens life immensely, but lengthens it in proportion.

"How I Opened My Telephone Door"

"When I became aware that my one telephone was insufficient to care for all of my outgoing and incoming calls, I installed an Auxiliary Line and Telephone.

"This line may be used for sending or receiving calls when my main telephone is busy, and prevents the reiterated "busy" reports which are so annoying and may frequently cause the loss of a business opportunity."

An Auxiliary Line and Telephone costs very little.

Told in Kippewa House.

Editor Gazette —One evening last October I was one of a group of guests sitting in the circle of warmth coming from a hot stove in the second floor hall of the Kippewa House, Kippewa, Quebec. The town is a jumping off place of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the northern woods. Our conversation had been dull till the clerk of the house came up with the announcement that a sportship's highness, one of the wealthy man who come ... for their summer and ... had taken a great fancy to the girl and she to him. ... to her aunt's house in ... ng the next ten years, and ... were separated by a very ... occurrence, no less than ... tion of Arthur Lynn to be ... enborough.

... tate of Edith's father yielded ... ew hundred dollars, which was ... upon her education Later she ... ited a pittance from her aunt.

... few days before the Johnstown catastrophe Leonard Trowbridge went to New York and borrowed $2,000 of Julian Edlinger & Co., with which firm he had had some previous dealings He put up as collateral for this loan 80,000 shares of stock in the Yellow Eagle gold mine of California, which stock was then quoted around 30. Thus the 80,000 shares were worth about $9,000

By the terms of the transaction Edlinger & Co were authorized to sell the mining shares, if the note was not paid at maturity, pay it and place the balance to the account of Trowbridge. If any of Trowbridge's friends knew of this transaction or of his ownership of that stock they perished in the flood

During the four months in which the note was maturing there occurred a bonanza "find" in the Yellow Eagle mine The 30 000 shares were eventually sold by Edlinger & Co. at $14 a share They actually obtained $420,000 net Originally the transaction may have been honest at least in semblance, for the account of Leonard Trowbridge was duly credited with the surprising balance to which it was entitled, but subsequently this money was juggled over into the personal account of Julian Edlinger

These facts were discovered by an aged clerk in Edlinger & Co.'s employ, a man named Wilbur Nash He seems to have had an old fashioned honesty, for he went to Julian Edlinger and inquired whether any attempt had ever been made to find Trowbridge's heirs The result was that Edlinger turned Nash out upon the street, not knowing that the old man had obtained evidence, legally valuable, of the Trowbridge transaction

Nash immediately began a search for an heir to the Trowbridge fortune, actuated chiefly by motives of common honesty but partly perhaps by resentment and the hope of reward He found Edith Trowbridge in New York, where she was earning her living as a stenographer The discovery was due more to accident than good work, for Nash's investigations at Johnstown had revealed only a hint that a daughter of Trowbridge had survived him. In the confusion incident to that appalling disaster identifications were necessarily hasty, and nobody really knew whether the little girl sent west was actually Trowbridge's daughter.

The only discoverable witness who had known her before and after the catastrophe was Arthur Lynn, now Earl of Denborough, and he was in India in the service of his government. But he had kept up a straggling correspondence with Edith, and she knew his whereabouts She wrote him a full story of the affair according to the information obtained from Nash, and awaited an answer with natural anxiety Greatly to her surprise and to the gratification of her lawyer, Mr Braydon, she received a letter of warm congratulation from Denborough, who said that he would go to the ends of the earth to serve her and promised to be in New York on the following 15th of April

Meanwhile a legal proceeding for the recovery of the money had been begun, but had been kept out of the courts Edlinger's defense was a denial of Miss Trowbridge's identity, and the struggle of his lawyers was to get at the amount of evidence in the possession of the other side They finally seemed to have decided that the debt could be proved, but that Miss Trowbridge's identity could not. They did not get track of the Earl of Denborough's connection with the case until the very last minute Then they learned that he was to be in New York on April 15, but they did not know how he was coming. If they had known that they would have intercepted him, for they were informed as to his poverty.

When I had heard this story the case was as plain to me as if the facts had been placarded on the wall. Denborough had arrived in town and had gone at once to Edlinger's office The penniless peer could not have failed to see that Edlinger would pay for his silence Edlinger had bribed him to go away and had intrusted the bribe money to his nephew, Henry, to be paid when Denborough should be safely out of the way.

I had already learned from the cabby that he was going to the Cunard pier A ship sailed at 2 o'clock Beyound a doubt Henry Edlinger and the Earl of Denborough would have taken passage and the price of defrauding Edith Trowbridge would have been paid in some far away city After such a performance Denborough's evidence was hardly to be feared, even though he should break his oath and return

But Denborough had not wished to ... and so he had collected his price by the strength of his fingers in advance of the stipulated time.

After I had talked over this view of the case with Lawyer Braydon, who had returned to his office, I telegraph

"This is awful thing I've seen some ... were pretty tough ... hasing around this ... but this beats them ... you the whole story ... do it You go to the ... Braydon lawyer"—and he gave the address—"and you ask for Mr Braydon, and if he's out see if Mr Nash is waiting for him or Miss Edith Trowbridge. Tell what you know to any one of those people and say you came from James—that's me—and see what happens"

I went to Mr Braydon's office. He was out Mr Nash had been there and had gone Miss Trowbridge was waiting in the lawyer's private room, to which upon her invitation, I was admitted

The young lady was of very attractive appearance a youthful sweetness mingling with considerable firmness of character to make up the general impression which she gave at the first glance

If I should attempt to tell her story in her own words and to give a picture of her in the act of telling it I should merely fail, so I must offer only the facts as I obtained them.

Miss Trowbridge was the daughter of Leonard B Trowbridge, who was once in a fairly prosperous way of business in Johnstown, Pa. He was drowned in the great flood of 1889. His wife and his two sons also perished—the whole family except Edith, who was then four years old. She was rescued from the flood through a most extraordinary display of heroism and endurance by a fourteen year-old boy named Arthur Lynn This youth also was orphaned by the disaster. His relatives were in England, but he preferred to go to Minneapolis, Minn., where he knew some one who would give him work.

Edith's sole surviving relative was an aunt who lived in Sterling, which is near Minneapolis The Johnstown relief committee sent her there in charge of a woman, and Arthur Lynn made the journey with them. The identity of the woman is lost.

"TEARS?" SAID HE. "WHY TEARS?"

ed police headquarters and learned that the noble earl had just been arrested in the Grand Central station. He was being brought down town in custody of an officer. At my request the chief agreed to forward the prisoner at once to Braydon's office.

We sat there and waited for him, and I shall never forget Miss Trowbridge as she looked during that interval. She preserved a calmness that was beautiful to see, but the tears would trickle down her cheeks.

"He was so noble as a boy," she said

And indeed it was pitiful to think of one who had begun life so well and had fallen so low at last. His title must have slain his soul I was inclined to agree with "James" that it was one of the worst cases of the temptation of money that had ever come to my notice

James, by the way, was a boy whom Nash had rescued from starvation long ago and had brought into the service of the Edlinger firm. To Miss Edge

"TEARS?" SAID HE. "WHY TEARS?"

Averting a Defeat.

A certain political boss always controlled his delegations to the conventions, and the delegates voted the way he told them to—and not until he did tell him

At one convention a delegate presented a resolution that the boss favored, but had not heard about soon enough to post his delegates as to how they should vote on it.

The chairman of the convention put the question, "All in favor of this resolution say aye"

There were a few ayes, and the boss' delegates looked at him inquiringly Seeing that he would not have time to pass the word and wanting the resolution passed, he dashed down the aisle toward the chairman, waving his hands and shouting

"Don't put the negative! Don't put the negative! I did that once and got in a —— of a fix"—Saturday Evening Post.

An Expensive Slip.

A well dressed man was hurrying along the Rue de Passy, Paris, when he slipped and, falling forward, dashed his elbow through the window of a wine shop The proprietor rushed out to claim the price of his window, and a large crowd gathered to see fair play The man who had broken the window protested that he had no money. "Search him!" shouted some one in the crowd. There were no police men about, so the wine shop keeper and a few friends took the law into their own hands, searched the man's pockets and found a 500 franc note. The crowd advised the wine shop keeper to pay himself well for his broken window He took 50 francs to pay for his broken glass, and the unpopular man who had broken it went away with a torn coat and 450 francs change. The 500 franc note was a forgery.

Genius at Table.

It would appear that the man of genius usually requires a large supply of substantial food Intellectual work demands full nutrition to repair the waste of brain tissue Scott was wont to attribute his extraordinary capacity for continuous work to his good digestion and the wholesome restraints of his appetite in his youth. "I have as keen an appetite now as any man," he said, "but I know when to stop"

Mirabeau is stated to have been an enormous feeder, eating as much at a meal as would suffice three ordinary men Talleyrand was also a noted eater. Goethe and Napoleon ate large quantities of food, but cared little for the quality. Bismarck was noted for his appetite, which was insatiable, but his food was of the simplest.

Many stories are told of the gross delight in eating evinced by the two Dumases, father and son, one of which is that the younger, being overtaken by a storm, took refuge in a hotel near Paris. Twenty four turkeys were hanging upon the spit

"And all for a single traveler," exclaimed the host.

"C'est mon pere!" exclaimed Alexandre. He was right.

Overdoing It.

"She married him to reform him."

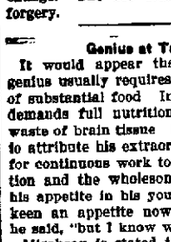
"And what was the result?"

"He's so good now that he's shocked at nearly everything she does."—Boston Transcript.

It is easier for the generous to forgive than for offense to ask it.—Thomson.

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness

Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complications affecting the general health



Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regarding the effects of constipation, C. E. Ayers, 6 Sabin St., Montpelier, Vt., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times. Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. The advice of all physicians is, "keep your bowels clean," and it's good advice.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory, your money is returned.

Contains Selected Current Sermons All Denominations Represented.

The best expressions of many of the ablest and most progressive minds. Combined, the sermons represent a great weekly homiletic review.

THE DAILY EAGLE SERMON EDITION

is read in every country on the globe.

It is read by thousands who otherwise would not enjoy the advantages of such interesting religious matter. It offers means of extending the voice and influence of the American clergyman far beyond the limit of his own pulpit.

To the Layman The Monday Sermon Edition offers opportunity for Bible and Gospel study unequaled by any other publication in America. Disappointment of church-going due to residence or business occupation overcome by reading the sermons and enjoying the religious thought.

Thousands of invalids are denied the consolation of the Gospel message. A great many of them will never be able to attend a Church. To those the Monday Sermon Edition brings a weekly Gospel message which they can obtain in no other way. What an ideal remembrance to send some one so afflicted. Do you know an invalid?

To the Invalid

To the Clergyman It is just as important for a preacher to keep abreast of his contemporaries as for a business man. He needs the stimulation and the inspiration that comes from the ideas of others.

Everyone who is identified in any way with religious work should be a regular subscriber of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle Monday Sermon Edition
